

Best practice guide for HP Data Protector

Protecting your most valuable asset: information

HP Data Protector is the first data backup solution in the entire industry to provide a uniform deduplication solution from the source to the target, and protect mission-critical data in virtual and physical environments. More than 45,000 customers worldwide trust their HP Data Protector solution to protect their most valuable asset—information.

Summary

This white paper provides recommendations for the implementation of a backup and recovery strategy for HP Data Protector that allows you to optimize the way you use Data Protector in each IT environment. The guide concludes with references to other sources of information related to Data Protector and a glossary of important terms. Also included are detailed analyses of the configuration of the software, performance of the backup environment and the connected devices, settings in daily backup operations, as well as recommendations for practical applications of the solution. The first section of the guide summarizes the important steps of a successful HP Data Protector implementation. The second section explains the steps, where necessary, in more detail and illustrates them with the corresponding examples. This document is aimed at all users of HP Data Protector, system integrators and solution architects, as well as those who would like to optimize the way they use the software.
