Moral Blackmail Ben Colburn, 2024-10-17 Moral Blackmail Coercion Responsibility and Global Justice identifies a novel kind of forced action yet one that is relatively neglected in ethics and moral philosophy Moral blackmail occurs when someone is forced to do something because someone else has made all its alternatives morally unacceptable Ben Colburn explores moral blackmail by first examining existing theories of coercion responsibility and voluntary action and defending its existence from various sceptical metaethical arguments before arguing that moral blackmail's significance is not limited to the interpersonal it is also endemic in the structures of distribution and decision making at the largest scale To show this he considers two problems in intergenerational and international justice the problem of passing the buck in environmental and population policies in the former and the problem of taking up the slack in situations of partial compliance with the demands of the latter Recognising these as instances of moral blackmail writ large offers novel solutions to these long standing philosophical problems as well as offering proof in use of the account Colburn proposes Moral Blackmail will be of interest to those studying and researching political philosophy ethical theory applied ethics and politics The English Record, 1985
