Ranz, 1966 Pioneer Photographers from the Mississippi to the Continental Divide Peter E. Palmquist, Thomas R. Kailbourn, 2005 This biographical dictionary of some 3 000 photographers and workers in related trades active in a vast area of North America before 1866 is based on extensive research and enhanced by some 240 illustrations most of which are published here for the first time The territory covered extends from central Canada through Mexico and includes the United States from the Mississippi River west to but not including the Rocky Mountain states Together this volume and its predecessor Pioneer Photographers of the Far West A Biographical Dictionary 1840 1865 comprise an exhaustive survey of early photographers in North America and Central America excluding the eastern United States and eastern Canada This work is distinguished by the large number of entries by the appealing narratives that cover both professional and private lives of the subjects and by the painstaking documentation It will be an essential reference work for historians libraries and museums as well as for collectors of and dealers in early American photography In addition to photographers the book includes photographic printers retouchers and colorists and manufacturers and sellers of photographic apparatus and stock Because creators of moving panoramas and optical amusements such as dioramas and magic lantern performances often fashioned their works after photographs the people behind those exhibitions are also discussed European War Collection Princeton University. Resources in Education , 1980 Integrated Models of Cognitive Systems Wayne D. Gray, 2007-04-19 The field of cognitive modeling has progressed beyond modeling cognition in the context of simple laboratory tasks and begun to attack the problem of modeling it in more complex realistic environments such as those studied by researchers in the field of human factors The problems that the cognitive modeling community is tackling focus on modeling certain problems of communication and control that arise when integrating with the external environment factors such as implicit and explicit knowledge emotion cognition and the cognitive system These problems must be solved in order to produce integrated cognitive models of moderately complex tasks Architectures of cognition in these tasks focus on the control of a central system which includes control of the central processor itself initiation of functional processes such as visual search and memory retrieval and harvesting the results of these functional processes Because the control of the central system is conceptually different from the internal control required by individual functional processes a complete architecture of cognition must incorporate two types of theories of control Type 1 theories of the structure functionality and operation of the controller and type 2 theories of the internal control of functional processes including how and what they communicate to the controller This book presents the current state of the art for both types of theories as well as contrasts among current approaches to human performance models It will be an important resource for professional and student researchers in
