

Chapter 7 notes part 3

Observational Learning: Look at Me

- Observational Learning - a process in which an organism learns by watching the actions of others
- Diffusion Chain - a process in which individuals initially learn a behavior by observing another individual perform that behavior; they themselves then become models from which other individuals learn the behavior
 - Mirror neurons - regions in the frontal lobe (area 44) and parietal lobe (area 40) are thought to be part of the mirror neuron system in humans (found in the brains of primates including humans)

Implicit Learning: Under the Radar

- Implicit Learning - learning that takes place largely independent of awareness of both the process and products of information acquisition (knowledge that sneaks under the radar)
 - Explicit learning can become implicit over time

Learning in the Classroom

- Massed practice - repeatedly studying information to be learned with little or no time between repetitions
- Disturbed practice - spreading out study activities, so that more time intervenes between repetitions of the information to be learned
- Interleaved practice - mixes different kinds of problems or materials within one study session
