Client, a 72-year-old male widower, lives with his son. Client tells his son that he has a headache and that he is not feeling well. Son notices some left-sided weakness in his father and takes client to the Emergency Department (ED). - Answer: The case study

The ED RN completes the full admission assessment and the assigned PN is present. Client is alert but struggles to answer questions. When he attempts to talk, he slurs his speech and appears very frightened. Which additional clinical manifestations should the nurse expect to find if client's symptoms have been caused by a stroke? (Select all that apply. One, some, or all options may be correct.) - Answer: - Hyperglycemia.

Rationale: Hyperglycemia (elevated blood sugar) may represent the body's stress response during a stroke and has been shown to contribute to brain damage and more severe outcomes.

- Elevated blood pressure.

Rationale: When a client has a stroke, the blood pressure will often respond by increasing. Increased blood pressure is also a sign of increased intracranial pressure and could signal worsening of brain tissue damage.

- Arrhythmias.

Cardiac rhythms may become abnormal after a stroke. Continuous cardiac monitoring is recommended to monitor ischemic heart changes and abnormal rhythms like atrial fibrillation.

Integrating Evolutionary Biology into Medical Education Jay Schulkin, Michael Power, 2019-12-19 Clinicians and scientists are increasingly recognising the importance of an evolutionary perspective in studying the aetiology prevention and treatment of human disease the growing prominence of genetics in medicine is further adding to the interest in evolutionary medicine In spite of this too few medical students or residents study evolution This book builds a compelling case for integrating evolutionary biology into undergraduate and postgraduate medical education as well as its intrinsic value to medicine Chapter by chapter the authors experts in anthropology biology ecology physiology public health and various disciplines of medicine present the rationale for clinically relevant evolutionary thinking They achieve this within the broader context of medicine but through the focused lens of maternal and child health with an emphasis on female reproduction and the early life biochemical immunological and microbial responses influenced by evolution The tightly woven and accessible narrative illustrates how a medical education that considers evolved traits can deepen our understanding of the complexities of the human body variability in health susceptibility to disease and ultimately help guide treatment prevention and public health policy However integrating evolutionary biology into medical education continues to face several roadblocks The medical curriculum is already replete with complex subjects and a long period of training The addition of an evolutionary perspective to this curriculum would certainly seem daunting and many medical educators express concern over potential controversy if evolution is introduced into the curriculum of their schools Medical education urgently needs strategies and teaching aids to lower the barriers to incorporating evolution into medical training In summary this call to arms makes a strong case for incorporating evolutionary thinking early in medical training to help guide the types of critical questions physicians ask or should be asking It will be of relevance and use to evolutionary biologists physicians medical students and biomedical research scientists
