

Case 11: Green Energy Solution

1. What are the three basic questions concerning green that should guide production-related issues at Green?
- What does green mean?
 - How are things changing?
 - How do we respond to that?

2. What is green?
- Characteristics of Green manufacturing: what does it mean and how?
- How would product technology levels affect prices of that product?
- Is expanded production in that technology profitable under all conditions?

3. List the three types of economic activities under each main section (see table below):
- Sales/marketing
 - R&D
 - Production

4. Complete the table:

Economic activity	Advantages	Disadvantages
Sales/marketing
R&D
Production
Energy/Environment

5. What are the questions?
- and opportunities concerning Green manufacturing for each activity (see table below)

- What is our strategy about technology?
- Are manufacturing in a technology being coming on line? (green) or have green cost been too high and demand for green too low? (brown) or have green cost been too high?
- How do we respond to that?
- Manufacturing should be in strategy (see table) or particularly important to that green technology or its development.

6. What are opportunities about?
- Opportunity costs are the consequences:

- How do we respond to that?
- Manufacturing the things you are expected to produce, plus make that investment with respect to green. Opportunity costs are the consequences.

7. What are some economic activities production green manufacturing does?

- Sales/marketing
- R&D
- Production
