William H. Walcott

Creole Escape English Edition:

Knowledge, Competence and Communication William H. Walcott, 2007 Conscientizacao involves knowing and naming the reality around you and interpreting that reality with critical analysis Hearing Sappho in New Orleans Ruth Salvaggio, 2012-06-13 While sifting through trash in her flooded New Orleans home Ruth Salvaggio discovered an old volume of Sappho's poetry stained with muck and mold In her efforts to restore the book Salvaggio realized that the process reflected how Sappho's own words were unearthed from the refuse of the ancient world Undertaking such a task in New Orleans she sets out to recover the city's rich poetic heritage while searching through its flooded debris Hearing Sappho in New Orleans is at once a meditation on this poetic city its many languages and cultures and a history of its forgotten poetry Using Sappho's fragments as a guide Salvaggio roams the streets and neighborhoods of the city as she explores the migrations of lyric poetry from ancient Greece through the African slave trade to indigenous America and ultimately to New Orleans The book also directs us to the lyric call of poetry the voice always in search of a listener Writing in a post Katrina landscape Salvaggio recovers and ponders the social consequences of the long song lyric chants especially the voices of women lost in time as it resonates from New Orleans's poetic sites like Congo Square where Africans and Indians gathered in the early eighteenth century to the modern day Maple Leaf Bar where poets still convene on Sunday afternoons She recovers for example an all but forgotten young Creole woman named L I and leads us all the way up to celebrated contemporary writers such as former Louisiana poet laureate Brenda Marie Osbey Sybil Kein Nicole Cooley and Katherine Soniat Hearing Sappho in New Orleans is a reminder of poetry's ability to restore and secure fragile and fragmented connections in a vulnerable and imperiled world Caribbean Literary Discourse Barbara Lalla, Jean D'Costa, Velma Pollard, 2014-02-15 A study of the multicultural multilingual and Creolized languages that characterize Caribbean discourse especially as reflected in the language choices that preoccupy creative writers Caribbean Literary Discourse opens the challenging world of language choices and literary experiments characteristic of the multicultural and multilingual Caribbean In these societies the language of the master English in Jamaica and Barbados overlies the Creole languages of the majority As literary critics and as creative writers Barbara Lalla Jean D Costa and Velma Pollard engage historical linguistic and literary perspectives to investigate the literature bred by this complex history They trace the rise of local languages and literatures within the English speaking Caribbean especially as reflected in the language choices of creative writers The study engages two problems first the historical reality that standard metropolitan English established by British colonialists dominates official economic cultural and political affairs in these former colonies contesting the development of vernacular Creole and pidgin dialects even among the region's indigenous population and second the fact that literary discourse developed under such conditions has received scant attention Caribbean Literary Discourse explores the language choices that preoccupy creative writers in whose work vernacular discourse displays its multiplicity of origins its elusive boundaries and its most vexing issues The authors address the degree to which language choice highlights political loyalties and tensions the politics of identity self representation and nationalism the implications of code switching the ability to alternate deliberately between different languages accents or dialects for identity in postcolonial society the rich rhetorical and literary effects enabled by code switching and the difficulties of acknowledging or teaching those ranges in traditional education systems the longstanding interplay between oral and scribal culture and the predominance of intertextuality in postcolonial and diasporic literature

Phonology and Morphology of Creole Languages Ingo Plag, 2003 Until very recently phonology and morphology have been neglected areas in the study of creole languages This collection of articles presents intriguing data and new analyses from a wide range of creoles that call into question traditional claims about the nature of the phonological and morphological systems of these languages and give crucial insights into one of the major questions of creole studies i e the question of how these languages and their grammars come about The volume is organized into 5 sections each focusing on particular aspects of the respective subsystems Segments and syllables Stress tone and intonation Morphophonology Derivational morphology Inflection

Time, Space, Matter in Translation Pamela Beattie, Simona Bertacco, Tatjana Soldat-Jaffe, 2022-09-28 Time Space Matter in Translation considers time space and materiality as legitimate habitats of translation By offering a linked series of interdisciplinary case studies that show translation in action beyond languages and texts this book provides a capacious and innovative understanding of what translation is what it does how and where The volume uses translation as a means through which to interrogate processes of knowledge transfer and creation interpretation and reading communication and relationship building but it does so in ways that refuse to privilege one discipline over another denying any one of them an entitled perspective The result is a book that is grounded in the disciplines of the authors and simultaneously groundbreaking in how its contributors incorporate translation studies into their work This is key reading for students in comparative literature and in the humanities at large and for scholars interested in seeing how expanding intellectual conversations can develop beyond traditional questions and methods

The Handbook of Pidgin and Creole Studies Silvia Kouwenberg, John Victor Singler, 2008-12-03 Their comparatively recent origins and their shared grammatical features provide pidgins and creoles with a special place in linguistic theory While providing a comprehensive treatment of core aspects of pidgins creoles this handbook focuses on the questions that animate creole studies

Translational Hermeneutics Radegundis Stolze, John Stanley, Larisa Cercel, 2015-06-22 This volume presents selected papers from the first symposium on Hermeneutics and Translation Studies held at Cologne in 2011 Translational Hermeneutics works at the intersection of theory and practice It foregrounds both hermeneutical philosophy and the various traditions especially phenomenology to which it is indebted in order to explore the ways in which the individual person figures at the center of the mediating process of translation Translational Hermeneutics offers alternative ways to understand the process of translating it is a holistic and strategic process that enhances understanding by assisting the transmission of meaning in and across multiple social and cultural contexts The papers in this collection accordingly provide a preliminary outline of Translational Hermeneutics Gathered together these papers broach a new discipline within Translation Studies While some essays explain the theoretical foundations of this approach others concentrate on practical applications in diverse fields for example literary studies and postcolonial studies

Exceptional Language and Linguistics Loraine K. Obler, Lise Menn, 1982 In this book leading scholars in eighteen subfields of linguistics demonstrate how research on exceptional language behaviour illuminates linguistic theory The authors explore systematic performance phenomena which occur in groups of exceptional language speakers and exceptional language situations These patterns suggest ways to test claims of psychological reality and to examine models of language production and comprehension Both creative language use and error data provide evidence for choosing among alternative linguistic theories The exceptional groups covered include bilinguals children aphasics poets and bureaucrats Other papers treat exceptional language use in creoles and pidgins in dying languages translations or proverbs and in ritual play and sign language
