Introduction

Due to the rising global business environment, many multinational corporations depend on cultural teams to enable them to perform work-related aspects. Despite this, people from various nationalities tend to show varying views on hierarchical management and work. Therefore, this translates to different behavioral issues on work norms, time management, problem-solving, and decision-making. It is unavoidable as multicultural teams come across these challenges caused by varying cultural backgrounds.

Therefore, miscommunication can happen between team members as their cultural origins tend to alter the trust and development in the organization, thus reducing the unit from functioning effectively (Moukarzel & Steelman, 2014). In the article "Communication in global cultural teams and international communication challenge" by Dr. Pranee Chitakornkijssil (2009), he notes that one of the best strategies in addressing these potential problems is by providing each member of the team with adequate training on cross-cultural aspects with specified various objectives. This document will seek to provide an in-depth review of the article, as mentioned above by Dr. Chitakornkijssil.

In the absence of cross-cultural training, colleagues might face a hard time building trust with lots of time wasted in communicating as the verbal and nonverbal aspects are not aligning to what one is used to in his/her culture. It is highly recommended that the colleagues receive adequate training on the same (Chitakornkijssil, 2009). Therefore, Dr. Chitakornkijssil articulates two aspects that cross-cultural training ought to incorporate. First, every team member should be aided in recognizing their own cultural beliefs to the best of their knowledge, work ethic, time and attitudes, and communication styles in both verbal and nonverbal. By so doing, it helps the team be accommodative of any other differing cultural choices of their fellow colleagues. The second aspect articulates that the training should emphasize teaching the team members how to work with workmates from varying cultural origins effectively. Through this, the associates will be well able to acknowledge and effectively react to the unique hints presented in both the verbal and nonverbal communication aspects arising from differences in cultural origins (Chitakornkijssil, 2009).

Organizational Culture and Challenges in Intercultural Communication

Different organizations have different corporate cultures, and owing to that, a corporation can use religion as a mechanism in solving organizational conflicts (Moukarzel & Steelman, 2014). There exist four regulatory culture angles, as noted by Dr. Chitakornkijssil, "strategic emphasis, leadership, dominant characteristics, and commitment mechanisms." Differences in culture influence how an organization seeks a solution when an issue arises, but there is the aspect where the colleagues might argue 'this is not how things are done here,' which then limits the problem-solving aspect. Dr. Chitakornkijssil argues that in the face of differing cultural organizations, the organizations can incorporate marketing intelligence in the collection of market information and how the firms will
