Prompt: Duke University seeks a talented, engaged student body that embodies the wide range of human experience; we believe that the diversity of our students makes our community stronger. If you'd like to share a perspective you bring or experiences you've had to help us understand you better—perhaps related to a community you belong to, your sexual orientation or gender identity, or your family or cultural background—we encourage you to do so. Real people are reading your application, and we want to do our best to understand and appreciate the real people applying to Duke.

When I first realized that I was attracted to people the same gender as I was, I remember feeling absolutely terrified. I knew that my parents were very strict, and I couldn't imagine the punishment that awaited me if I didn't comply with their vision of a perfect child. As a result, I grew to rein in my feelings, pretending and acting the whole time. Being suppressed and unable to express my own feelings has led me to gain many unique perspectives, as I hope to express through this Duke University application essay.

Although I was born into a very comfortable existence, I ran away from home multiple times, and I learned that monetary success was not necessarily happiness. Through my journey of self-discovery and taking risks when I felt I couldn't hide anymore, I managed to find a welcoming community that took me in. However, I also know the feeling of hating myself and wishing I were different, and it is something I hope that nobody else has to go through.

At Duke University, I hope to be able to study Communications and Policy, knowing that I have the responsibility to work towards change. If there's anything my experiences have taught me, it's that nothing happens if everyone stays silent. I hope to use my degree and future experiences to become a meaningful voice in politics, advocating for people in similar situations, and ensuring that they get the right to live in happiness just as everyone else in this country.
